

TGI launches new online web-ordering platform

MIAMI, Florida (December 30, 2008) - Tire Group International goes live with its online ordering system January 5th, 2009. The final step after two years of system improvements, which have included the implementation of a fully operational warehouse management system (WMS) integrated to a new back-office ERP system. TGI contracted with Radiant Software Solutions and worked hand in hand to tailor a complete software solution for all of its needs, allowing TGI to increase sales in 2008 by over 20% with no added employees. TGI is also doing its part in going green; the system has allowed TGI to go virtually paperless. TGI has various customers and even a few suppliers that have expressed interest in this unique software and TGI is contemplating on marketing it commercially in the near future.

“We feel that with the addition of our online ordering platform, along with the rest of our system improvements we are poised for future growth. TGI spent considerable time and money in developing a software that is versatile and fits our business model of both domestic and international distribution. I feel we are now on the cutting edge of technology within our industry,” said Joaquin Gonzalez, Tire Group International’s Chief Operating Officer.
